Outlook for Health Care Reform
February 25, 2009

Peter Harbage

Peter Harbage, a Senior Fellow at the Center for American Progress Action Fund and President of Harbage Consulting, has more than a decade of experience working to improve health policy at the federal, state and local level. He teaches on the American healthcare system at the University of Southern California's School of Policy, Planning and Development and is a frequent contributor to UCS's Annenberg School for Communication Health Journalism Fellowship program. Working almost exclusively with government agencies and non-profit foundations, Peter has published extensively through his national research practice on health reform concepts and the public financing of health care. His clients include the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, The Commonwealth Fund, and the David and Lucile Packard Foundation. His work also focuses on coalition-building to find solutions to the pressing challenges facing health care systems in America.

Peter has also been involved in crafting several major comprehensive health reform proposals. From 2003 to 2008, Peter served as the senior health policy advisor to presidential candidate and former Senator John Edwards. In 2007, he worked extensively with Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger's health care reform team in California. Peter served as an Assistant Secretary for Health at the California Health and Human Services Agency under Governor Gray Davis, and as a Special Assistant to the Administrator of the federal Health Care Financing Administration under the Clinton Administration. His first health policy experience was as an intern on The White House Health Care Task Force in 1993.

Peter's expertise and insight make him a frequent source for reporters. He has appeared on CNN and NPR, and has been cited in the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post, the San Francisco Chronicle and the Sacramento Bee. He is a frequent opinion writer. Peter graduated Phi Beta Kappa with High Honors from the University of Michigan, where he also earned a graduate degree in public policy.
